Some Reckless Statements

According to some of the highway safety engineers, misconceptions about traffic problems have given rise to sweeping and reckless condemnation of the motoring public. It is pointed out that one nationally-circulated magazine went so far as to characterize the motorist as "the most lawless of all Americans."

Considering that this statement encompasses a group of 75 million licensed drivers in the United States, it is obvious that such an unfair to condemn almost half of our total population as drunken motorists who are all guilty of criminal negligence on our highways.

Actually, the average motorist is a good driver who performs well on roads which often are inadequate to handle their traffic load, according to a statement of one traffic engineer. He adds that there has been a steady decline in number of fatal accidents per miles traveled over the past 25 years, despite such records as during the last Christmas holiday period. As an example, he states that the U. S. fatality rate for 1935 was 15.9 per 100 million vehicle miles, but in 1955 this figure had been reduced to 6.2 per 100 million vehicle miles.

Despite this encouraging trend, the safety engineers, the motorist or any others should have no intention of creating a complacent attitude towards traffic problems. Instead of scare campaigns based on the misconception of the average motorist as a John Dillinger in the loose, however, the logical educational campaigns should be continued for even better results.

The educational programs without doubt have helped to cut down the accident rate in the grade school group and among even smaller children. Such results are an example of safety education and work on the school patrol system.

GERMAN TALKS IN WASHINGTON

Reports From WASHINGTON

(Editor's Note: The following is the first in a series of three columns dealing with the civil rights proposals pending before the 83rd Congress.)

HISTORY TEACHES US that people lose their civil rights as the result of governmental action. It was because of this fact of life that our founding fathers deemed it wise to enshrine in the Bill of Rights of our Constitution the inalienable rights of free men and to insure their perpetuity by prohibiting governmental interference with the enjoyment of them.

These guarantees are stated clearly and are made all inclusive. They are intended to provide that Congress shall make "no law" respecting them and establish them in Federal Courts for the rights of citizens.

TO THOSE WHO insist that the establishment of new procedures are necessary to the protection of civil rights, the question would be to ask these questions: What rights would you protect which already are not?

What CD Does Before An Attack

By Max Lockwood
Director, Statesboro and Bulloch County

Civil defense is guaranteed by the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. Why is it necessary to create a Commission to do what State and Federal Courts already are empowered to do? In it because the Courts have failed? If so, in what way?

What procedures or resources for redress in cases of civil rights violations would you substitute in lieu of those already established by the Constitution and Bill of Rights?

Why do you feel that the constitutional guarantees and processes under which this nation has achieved the greatest success, prosperity and liberty it enjoys today are not adequate to meet the needs of present and future generations?

THE PROTECTION of the civil rights of our citizenry is not the enactment of a writer of confusing, contradictory and possibly unnecessary laws but rather a strict adherence to the constitutional guarantees, processes and prohibitions which already are the law of the land and which, without question, are adequate to meet the needs of our citizenry who are concerned about protecting the rights of the American people.

OUT OF THE PAST Part Fact-Part Fancy

In 1700 a writer said he saw herds of buffalo in this part of Georgia "numbered in the tens of thousands." Charles Wesley wrote that "General Oglethorpe and a party of friends were away on a trip shooting buffaloes." In 1700 the Georgia Assembly passed the first game law, but it was too late to save the buffalo, the carrier pigeons, the whooping crane and other kinds of wild life unknown to us today.

The Indians were numerous in the days when this section was Saint Phillips Parish. Today we know little about them, for they left no records except in the new heads and pottery found in some burial mound that is turned up by the plow or by a road building crew.

ed to 60 bushels with an increased profit of $42.12. On a pasture, the test showed 100 pounds of beef from an acre fertilized with 500 pounds of high grade mixed fertilizer and then by nitrogen on the cost per pound of available nitrogen in the material.

Probably more soil samples have been sent to the College of Agriculture this spring by the county agents than any two previous years. Much county farmers are using this service freely now. If the fertilizer practice as recommended is followed, it is possible to increase the agricultural income in Georgia by two hundred million dollars, the specialists that prepared the charts think.

Soil-Water Conservation

By E. T. ("Red") Mullis

Now is the time to begin fertilizing your fish pond for good fishing and fat fish. This spring and summer. Fertilize at the rate of 150 to 200 pounds per acre of an 8-8-2 or equivalent fertilizer every week or 10 days for about five or six times. It will take this many applications in most cases to get the dark green or brown color necessary for maximum fish growth and weed control.

A word about fish pond fertilizers. There is a new fertilizer on the market with an analysis of 20-20-5 which is more quickly soluble in water because of its chemical composition. It doesn't take equal 100 pounds of this fertilizer to equal 100 pounds of an 8-8-2. It has its advantage of not having to handle as much weight but according to latest research findings, is not superior to ordinary 8-8-2 for fish ponds. It will dissolve in water faster than ordinary 8-8-2, but 8-8-2 will dissolve and do the job just as well. Authorities recommend an 8-8-2 fertilizer or equivalent, so take your pick—it doesn't matter.

Cooperators of the Ogeechee River Soil Conservation District are continuing to build terraces at a rapid rate. We at the work office, realizing that farmers have a limited amount of time to build terraces, are giving priority to terrace and waterway requests above all others at this time. In a few weeks terrace and waterway building will be over and we will have more time to devote to ponds and farm planning. It is hoped that those cooperators wanting pond assistance will not take the attitude that we are deliberately dragging our feet on their requests, but will understand our position. Later we will be happy to give them prompt service.

THE BEST PAVEMENT FOR AMERICA'S GREAT NEW ROADS IS CONCRETE... on all counts!

The Federal Aid Highway Act of 1956 provides that the Federal government will pay 90% of the cost of building the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways. The states, however, must bear the entire burden of maintaining it!

In fairness to taxpayers that means that the pavement chosen should be the most durable. It also should be the least costly to maintain. Concrete is the answer on both counts!

Roads built to Interstate System standards may cost less—and in no case much more if built with concrete. And once built, concrete roads need far less maintenance and serve much longer than other kinds. All these facts are a matter of record!

Whether the roads have only two lanes or many, you, as a taxpayer, will profit from the choice of dependable, long-lasting concrete, the pavement which has proven best on all counts.

To Build Rural Roads In Georgia

Roger H. Lawson, center, shown in the cut in the adjoining column, chairman of Georgia State Highway Board, is being handed a check for $17,500,000 by Louis H. Weller, right, representing John Nuyven & Co., Chicago investment banking firm which was the successful bidder on third increment of Rural Roads Authority bonds. On left is W. N. Harden, Commerce business man and member of Rural Roads Authority. Lawson is handing Weller bond document.

The transaction took place in New York, where final steps in executing bond sale were carried out recently.

Lawson, who serves as Rural Roads Authority chairman, later endorsed the check over to First National Bank of Atlanta, trustee of funds.

Sale of the third increment of Rural Roads Authority bonds raised the total outstanding in Rural Roads bonds to $47,500,000. Some 708 miles of new Georgia rural roads have been programmed for construction under the third increment. These projects total 190 and are located in 120 counties. A number of third increment projects have already been let to contract.

Mileage covered by first and second increment Rural Roads Authority projects was 1,879.

The Rural Roads Authority is authorized to issue negotiable bonds not to exceed $100,000,000 to pay for new rural roads in the statewide program, sponsored by Governor Marvin Griffin.

Halman's Sword Factory, operated by two Prussian immigrants who came to Columbus in the 1830's, produced 250 swords and cutlery daily during the War Between the States. In 1863, 400 workers, mostly boys, were employed there. A federal force burned the plant, April 17, 1865.

Cautions Taxpayers To Check Return

The Internal Revenue Service is glad to provide all the help it reasonably can to taxpayers during the 1957 filing season on 1956 returns. To us, returns prepared by others are no different than those on which the individual taxpayer—who incidentally, deserves full credit for his effort—has worked for hours, perhaps to do a thorough and accurate job.

"When we or anyone else help a taxpayer prepare a return, such assistance is no guarantee that the return is accepted as correct and not subject to either preliminary check or later complete audit," Mr. Cobb stressed. "Every year taxpayers come to us for help and appear very disturbed to learn this. Some go away without completing their forms or seeking further aid. They tell us they'll be back and sometimes they say they want to go over their records for the past year again."

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue recently called attention to the relatively large number of instances involving tax consultants filing false and fraudulent returns for others. In one case alone over 1,000 returns were prepared by a self-styled consultant and resulted in the disallowance of over $400,000 in claimed deductions.

That is the belief of the Farmers Home Administration committee in Bulloch County consisting of W. C. Hodges, Robert A. Wynn, and John L. Dekin.

This committee reviews applications for all loans made by the Farmers Home Administration and helps the county supervisor adapt the agency's program to local farmers' needs. Eleven farmers in this area have applied for farm housing loans in the past seven months, and interest in this type of credit is increasing. Throughout the nation approximately 1,700 loans for $10,000,000 have been made.

In addition to being a farm owner, other eligibility requirements, as outlined by the Bulloch County Committee provide that the applicant must have enough income from the farm or from other sources to meet family living and farm operating expenses to repay his loan and other debts on schedule.

Farm Housing loans are repayable over periods up to 33 years at 4 percent interest, and are secured by a mortgage on the farm. Applicants get building plans and specifications from whatever source they choose and make all arrangements for hiring the necessary labor and purchasing materials. The Farmers Home Administration representative, who is Marshall R. Thigpen in Bulloch county, reviews the plans, inspects the construction as it progresses, and sees that it meets generally accepted standards of soundness.

Farm owners may get further information at the Farmers Home Administration county office located at 7 North College Street, Statesboro.

tions. The ensuing additional taxes and penalties totaled $170,000. The Commissioner stated that rarely are these citizens members of recognized professional groups; in fact, many are almost completely lacking in qualifications.

"No matter who prepares a return, the taxpayer or taxpayer who signs it are responsible for its accuracy. They must be prepared to back up all entries, to prove all claims. To us, returns prepared by others are no different than those on which the individual taxpayer—who incidentally, deserves full credit for his effort—has worked for hours, perhaps to do a thorough and accurate job."
